Kittens looking for love ...

Barry

OK, so it's normal for a kitten to be curious ... and fast. But Barry (this month's dashing "cover cat" above) takes it to the next level! No wonder he's named after Barry Allen, also known as The Flash. "He's the leader of the pack – typically the first to do anything!" says his foster mom. Of course, Barry's adorably outgoing nature extends to people, too. "He's always been very social." And he'd be happiest in a home with playmates, whether feline or human. If you're ready to adopt Barry, he'll be your best friend in a flash!

Bruce

With his all-black coat and bold personality, there's no question how Bruce the kitten got his name! Bruce is a definite ringer for Bruce Wayne, also known as ... Batman! "He's probably the rowdiest," says his foster mom, "but also a good snuggler when he's not running around." And he runs around – a lot. He would thrive "in a place where he can be very active. He needs other kitties to play with or people who can commit to keeping him busy." Is your home where Bruce will find his forever cat cave?

Camilla

For a while, Camilla was a lone kitten struggling to survive. But her foster family wouldn't give up on her – and Camilla kept clawing her own way to health, too! In fact, now this little fighter is ready for the next round: adoption! She's "spunky, sweet, playful and snuggly" with an easygoing personality that makes her a great pal for all sorts of companions. After play, she's always ready for snuggles and "letting you know that she loves you." Is your home where Camilla can find plenty of love in return?
